Drugs can destroy the mind of a whole nation: children, youth, the old.

In Olympic sports games, a most seriously planned event that countries of the world compete for supremacy, honor and dignity, there must also needs high standards of fair play. Firstly, we can't tolerate cheating but rather adherence to rules of fairness.

It's not the one who takes drugs the most but one who executes great athletic skills through hard work and endurance.

Secondly, athletes who take drugs don't pose as good role models to those in the sports industry and as celebrities. Saying no to drugs will inspire others.

Thirdly, drugs like steroids, kill. Drug use needs to be stopped.

If sports glorify health and exercise, then drugs that destroy health and shorten lives is the antithesis of it. We best think of sports equates a healthy mind and body.
