Children's health is increasingly deteriorating by fatness throughout the world, an even condition is pretty alarming among the world's most affluent western countries.

There are numbers of reasons causing this problem and each problem needs to be dealt in a particular way.

Children nowadays give preference to playing the computer game or chatting on the internet with their friends rather than playing outdoor sports.

In addition to that, the quality of foods which they consume every day made the matters worse. These foods, which are easily available, often contain ingredients that are high in calorie, cholesterol and fat, while at the same time lack necessary vitamin, mineral and protein and these factors are taking a toll on their health.

As a result, it is imperative that we should fight collectively hand in hand against this huge problem before it poses a threat to our health system.
