By far, global warming is the most worrying threat to our planet at the present. The predominant factors resulting in the warming of the earth are the emissions of CO<sub>2</sub> and deforestation.

CO<sub>2</sub>, which damages the ozone layer, comes from several sources, but the most problematic are those coming from the burning of fossil fuels from power plants. This releases thousands of tons of CO<sub>2</sub> into the atmosphere every year.

Nevertheless, there are potential ways to solve these problems, or at least reduce the effects. First, governments need to reduce our dependence on fossil fuels and promote alternatives. Second, individuals can play a part by making lifestyle changes.

Therefore, although global warming is a serious issue, there are steps that governments and individuals can take to reduce its effects. If we are to save our planet, it is important that this is treated as a priority for all concerned.
