SAMPLE ANSWERS

One day, a woman was at home. Some boys were playing soccer in the park next to her house. One of the boys kicked the ball and it accidentally hit the woman's window, cracking the glass and surprising the woman. The next day, the woman went to the City Hall to report the incident. The man at the counter told her that there had been many similar complaints from other residents. A month later, the woman was walking past the park. She was pleased to see some workmen putting up a sign that said ball games were not allowed. The boys also saw the sign as they arrived at the park, and they looked disappointed. Later that day, the woman saw the boys from the park playing soccer in the road. A car had to stop because they were in the way. The driver of the car looked angry and was shouting at the boys.

ability, but what sets the best players apart is the hard work and hours of training they put it.

- No. 4 Yes. There are already many traffic jams, especially on weekend and national holidays. Unless the government discourages people from buying cars, by raising car tax, for example, the problem will get worse.
