Speech

Questions 7 through 9 refer to the following speech.

(Woman): Managers, I'd like to thank you for coming to our staff meeting this morning. As you know, the company has been experiencing financial difficulties lately, resulting in the loss of many of our valuable employees, people who have worked under your management. Although we hope that a continuation of layoffs will not be necessary to recoup our status, we may have another round of dismissals in the near future. If we must continue the layoffs, I will need a list of two people from each department whom you could afford to lose if necessary. I know this isn't easy, and it may not happen. I just want to make you aware that it is a possibility. Any questions?

7. Where did this speech take place?

(A) In the boardroom

(A) Select two people from their department to possibly lay off.

(B) Warn the people in the department that they're losing their jobs.

(C) Come in an extra day to make up for the failing work force.

(D) Cut back their own hours to make up for the monetary losses.

Announcement

Questions 10 through 12 refer to the following announcement.

(Man) Thanks for agreeing to meet with me, Mr. Finch. I know as the head of Finance, you're a busy man. I'd like to talk with you about our new hire in Accounting. She is doing great! She comes into work on time, stays late when I need her to, and consistently does a great job on whatever assignments I provide her. I know that you said her position was not permanent, but I'd truly like you to consider hiring her on full-time. She would be a valuable asset to our company because of her willingness to go the extra mile. I wish I had ten employees just like her. If you consider bringing her on, I'll take full responsibility for getting her over to Human Resources, and training her so she's the best she can be. Will you consider it?
