INTERMEDIATE

GRAMMAR FOCUS

Gerunds and infinitives can both be used as subjects, subject complements, and direct objects of verbs. The choice between which to use as a direct object is sometimes dictated by the verb. But the choice of whether to use a gerund or infinitive as a subject, subject complement, or object of other verbs is left to the speaker/writer. This choice can indicate shades of meaning.

MEANING
INFINITIVE	GERUND
potential	actual/fact
idea/plan/future	past/end
single/repeated	ongoing
request/instruction/causation	attitude (no plan)
(often reduced from modals/ subjunctive/imperative)

GERUND

INFINITIVE

forget He'll never forget spending so much money on his first computer. Don't forget to spend money on the tickets.
