3 TOPIC Does more need to be done to address Japan's low birthrate?
4

5 Please refer this sample answer when you make an answer, then write your answer below.

6 Sample answer: 答えを作る時の参考にして下さい。

7 Japan's low birthrate is usually seen as a serious problem that needs to be urgently
8 addressed. However, it need not all be doom and gloom.

9 It is good for the environment. A low birthrate will eventually lead to a smaller
10 population. In a densely populated country such as Japan, this will mean more living space and 11 therefore less stress for citizens, and it will put less pressure on the natural environment and 12 natural resources.

13 A declining population will also reduce the size of Japan's economy. However, many
14 countries with small population, such as those in Scandinavia, have thriving smaller-scale
15 economies. What is more, they have very high living standards. Japan should model itself on 16 such countries as its economy shrinks in size.

17 Finally, it is true that Japan's population is aging. However, senior citizens have a
18 wealth of skills to offer, both in the workplace and in the community at large. This means they
19 will need to play a pivotal role in contributing to the well-being of a society that has fewer young
20 people.
